CHECKLIST OF PETRUCCI'S PUBLICATIONS, IN CHRONOLOGICAL ORDER

his list includes all titles published by Petrucci, including cancels and hidden editions. In addition, it includes, in sequence, books which I have relegated to chapter 14 on "Ghosts". The numbers in the last column refer to the entry numbers in the following bibliographical descriptions.

All dates in parentheses are speculative; many are contingent on analyses of paper and typographical material. Several of these dates could therefore be moved by some months in either direction. Further, when several occur in succession, as in 1514–15 or 1519–20, it is possible that the order of individual items could be changed slightly, as a result of further research.

CONCORDANCE AND DOCUMENTS

Chapter Eighteen

CONCORDANCE LISTS FOR ALL PETRUCCI'S MUSICAL OUTPUT

his chapter contains concordance patterns for all works published by Petrucci, arranged in alphabetical sequence by language. Latin incipits are followed by Italian and French sequences, and then by the few titles in Dutch, German, and Spanish, and finally by a sequence of titles to instrumental or untexted pieces. Within the Latin series, complete masses are entered first, followed by mass ordinary movements and sections, and then an alphabetical series of other incipits.

At times the actual alphabetical sequence looks arbitrary. While titles show Petrucci's spelling, they are arranged in a sequence that corresponds to modern spellings.

With some 600 concordant sources, and more continuing to surface, it has proved impossible to check each source, and a number of the following entries are necessarily derived from the recent scholarly literature.

For each work, the entry comprises:

Headline, giving the title or incipit (usually in Petrucci's spelling), the composer's name (in standardised form) and the number of voices: when the spelling of the title varies from edition to edition, or issue to issue, the version of the first issue is given. Later versions are only given separate entries (as cross-references) if they are significantly different. The names of alternative composers (cited in concordant sources) are listed beneath Petrucci's (or the generally accepted) attribution, given on the headline.

This is followed, if necessary, by the titles or incipits of subsequent partes

1. a sequence listing Petrucci's sources, showing edition number (following the numbering in this bibliography); composition number in the edition, and folios

(except with part-books); in parentheses, attributions, and different text incipits, given in the spelling of the source;

Attributions, when in italics, are present in the source at the head of the piece (or in an index). Otherwise, they are taken from the title-page, thus drawing attention to the implicit (and dangerous) presumption that they apply to all pieces in the volume;

2. a similar sequence for other vocal or polyphonic printed sources. When these sources give a different text, this is indicated, and there is usually a cross-reference from that text to Petrucci's text. Attributions are treated as for Petrucci's editions;
3. a similar sequence for manuscripts concordances;
a list of reproductions or facsimiles, solely of Petrucci's editions;

Occasional remarks on the text, its authorship or sources, when particularly relevant to the work in question;

4. a list of editions of the piece. This does not aim to be complete, normally excluding ephemeral editions, and also editions of parts of works, particularly movements of masses;

Comments — these are restricted in scope, usually referring to questions of attribution or dissemination;

Literature — bibliographical citations to discussions of the work. This section cannot begin to be comprehensive, and only includes significant discussions which might impinge in some way on Petrucci's place in the dissemination of the piece;

These entries are followed by a similar sequence of categories for intabulations, which in many cases give important clues to the dissemination of Petrucci's editions. These are sorted according to the performing resources required. There has been no attempt to distinguish between different later intabulations for the same instrument, or to list editions for intabulations other than for those published by Petrucci.

Comments: Petrucci published this work as the second part of Mouton's Celeste beneficium , q.v., and was followed in this by the Giunta (Pasoti and Dorico) edition. The two are also linked in the London manuscript • This text is in honour of Louis XII and Anne of Brittany. The text is changed in each of the Burgundian manuscript sources, so that the names reflect the intended recipient of the manuscript: Henry VIII and Catharine of Aragon (GB-Lbl); Ferdinand and Anne of Bohemia (I-Rvat); perhaps Margaret of Austria herself, with a connection to Mechelen (GB-Ob)

Comments: Published by Petrucci and Giunta (Pasoti and Dorico) as if Févin's Adiutorium nostrum were a second part. The two are also found juxtaposed in GB-Lbl, Roy.8.G.vii, Shine, Mouton, i, 52-161 suggests that the two belong together. The attribution pattern, as well as the occurrence of Févin's motet as a separate unit, makes this unlikely, even though they were apparently both composed for Anne of Brittany and Louis XII

Comments: The attributions to Mouton are, with the exception of that to Part 2 in I-Bc, Q2o, all late and German. While the attribution of Part 1 to Lafage seems secure, it may be that the claims of Mouton to Part 2 depends on a confusion with his separate work with that incipit

Comments: According to Colón's catalogues, this seems to have been the first piece in Petrucci's lost Frottole Libro Decimo. The two references are cited in the bibliography, above: however, I am sceptical that this was indeed the first piece, and am more inclined to suspect another error in citing numbers on the part of Colón.

Lamentations

Arranged in the order of settings opening with the Incipit, followed by those beginning with the Aleph verses, then settings of the Recordare. For many details, see Thomas, Petrucci; Cattin, de Quadris. Neither of Petrucci's sources is entirely clear as to how the texts are divided into partes according to musical or liturgical usage. It has seemed more useful here to indicate merely which verses are set to music, and note the presence of Jerusalem convertere or Recordare settings.

Incipit lamentatio ieremie	Erasmus	4vv

4. Massenkeil, Mehrstimmige , 19-23 • Thomas, Petruci , 245-58
Comments: Cattin, "Nuova", p. 211, suggests that the two sources are independent.
Incipit lamentatio ieremie	de Quadris	2vv

3. I-Fd, 21, pp. 8-12 (Anon. à1. For details of the sections used, and the texts set to them, see Cattin, Processionale , 80)
Sources also having the music for Friday ( Heth. Cogitavit ) and Saturday ( Caph. Non enim ), as one set (for details of the verses set, see Cattin, de Quadris , 32): I-Fn, II.I.350, Nos.35-43, 80v-90r (Anon.) • I-VIIs, 11, 1v-10r (Anon.)
4. Cattin, Processional • Cattin, de Quadris • Massenkeil, Mehrstimmiger • Thomas, Petruci , 259-90
Comments: This set travels with settings for Friday and Saturday, which are probably also by de Quadris. On the dating of the music, and of the Vicenza manuscript, see Bent, "Pietro".
Incipit lamentatio ieremie	Tromboncino	4vv

4. Massenkeil, Mehrstimmiger , 14–18 • Thomas, Petrucci , 158–72
Comments: Thomas, Petrucci suggests this is by Ycart • Cattin, “Nuova”, p. 211, points out the differences between the two sources, suggesting that the manuscript represents a different embellishment of a model.

composed for the birth of Renée of France in 1510. The 1535 edition changes the text, perhaps to honour one of François's daughters.

Comments: The Altus of 1526<sup>1</sup> shows a pattern of putting a new ascription at the head of a page, even when the piece begins on a lower stave. Despite this, the appearance of the name of Févin must be seen as a printing error • Composed in honour of Claude, wife of François I of France. Cazaux, Musique, 58-59, suggests that the work may have been written for their wedding in May 1514, although (as she adds) this may be too close to the date of Petrucci's edition

Comments: The ascription to Michael (?Pesenti) seems to be the most reliable. The Florentine source, Cortona/Paris, significantly does not ascribe the piece to Isaac, and the conflict between Glareanus's edition and the related Munich manuscript is significant. Indeed (according to Miller, "Glareanus", 30), Glareanus changed the ascription to Pre Michael de Verona in a corrected copy sent to Johannes Aal

Comments: Bibliographically, this appears in the edition to be the last section of a Recordare setting, but it comes after what should be the end — a Jerusalem luge. Thomas, Petrucci rightly regards it as a separate work. He suggests it might be by de Quadris.

Text by Petrarch, *Sonnetti*4. Haar, “Early”, 184–88 • Verdelot, Madrigals, xxix, 84–87

Comments: If in fact written by Verdelot, this is clearly his earliest printed madrigal, and affects our view of his activity as much as it does the provenance of the contents of Petrucci’s edition.

Comments: It is perhaps significant of the fame of this version of the work, and of its role as a stimulus to others, that it is the only setting of this text not to have a composer's name attached to it in the index of 1501 • The work is cited in Aaron Trattato (1525), ch.4

1. 1, No.94 (Anon in the index. These folios lacking in the unique extant copy) • 5, No.94 (Anon.) • 14, No.94 (Anon.)

3. I-Fc, 2442, pp. 37v–39v (Bruhier)

4. Boer, Chansonvormen, No.11 • Hewitt, Odhecaton, 414–17

Comments: The New Grove article on Bruhier suggests that some of his earlier pieces may be by Jean de la Bruguière.

Chapter Nineteen

CONCORDANT SOURCES

his chapter lists the sources cited in the preceding chapter. The bibliographical citations given after sources are restricted to references to facsimiles, complete editions of the source, or studies giving complete inventories or important information on the provenance of the source. (No bibliographical citations are given here for editions printed by Petrucci, since they are listed in extenso in the descriptions, identified by the number at the end of each entry below.) The Census-Catalogue (CC) is a central bibliographical resource for the majority of the manuscripts mentioned below.

These citations are followed by reference to works in the source also found in Petrucci's edition: “6: 3” indicates that the third piece in edition No.6 of my catalogue is also found in this source, in one form or another. Further details can then be traced in chapter 18.

Chapter Twenty

his chapter falls into three sections: first come documents relating to Petrucci's life and activity (Nos. 1–25); a second section contains related documents — principally Venetian, details about citizenship, and other privileges (Nos. 26–41); finally comes a small group of documents listing the contents of early collections, or specifically citing Petrucci's editions (Nos. 42–54). This does not include ownership marks on extant copies, which can be traced through Tables 10-3 and 10-4.

The first section is not as complete as we would like. One principal reason is that, according to Don Ceccarelli, there are no longer any documents preserved in Fossonbrone pertaining to dates before 1513. Some of the Notarial documents are now in the Archivio di Stato in Pesaro; other documents for the city from before 1513 were given to the Red Cross in 1952. Any references to such documents are taken from Vernarecci's work, unless otherwise stated.

Secondly, I have not included a number of the documents newly discovered by Gialdroni and Ziino, but not yet published. I am grateful to both scholars for allowing me to consult their work in progress, which has made my chapter 1 considerably more complete.

Finally, some important texts, such as Paulus's privilege, were printed in Petrucci's editions, and are therefore transcribed in the bibliographical descriptions: they are merely cited here.

Note that many of the documents in the ASV have new foliations, which are as visible as the old. In the following, the new are given in parentheses.

Checklist of documents:

—. The inventory of the Chapel Library of Ottheinrich, at Neuburg (Pfalz), is now D-HEu, Cod.Pal.Germ.318. It has been studied by Lambrecht, Heidelberger, and references in chapter 10 are taken from her work.

44. The Fugger family collection would have been one of the largest of Petrucci's editions, if it had survived intact. The inventory is edited in Schaal, "Musikbibliothek". Entries for Petrucci's editions appear in the first section, under the following heading:

- Heussner and Schultz believe that this reference is to the second book of Frottola.
 Despite the phrase “Liber II”, I incline to think that it is more likely to be a reference to Libro IV (My Nos.23 or 35), given the implication of “modus cantansi . . .”)
